Dr. Philip Chase Bobbitt, author of The Shield of Achilles: War, Peace and the Course of History (2003), is one of the nation's leading constitutional theorists and a leading theorist in international security and the history of strategy. Bobbitt is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and a Fellow of the Club of Madrid. He has served as Associate Counsel to the President, Counselor on International Law at the State Department, Legal Counsel to the Senate Iran-Contra Committee, and Director for Intelligence, Senior Director for Critical Infrastructure and Senior Director for Strategic Planning at the National Security Council. He is a former trustee of Princeton University; and a former member of the Oxford University Modern History Faculty and the War Studies Department of Kings College, London. This fall, he is the James Barr Ames Visiting Professor at Harvard Law School. Other important books by Professor Bobbitt include Tragic Choices (with Guido Calabresi) (1978), Constitutional Fate (1982), and Constitutional Interpretation (1991). His latest book is Terrorism: Can We Win this War? to be published by Knopf in 2006.

This is the first lecture in an extended series of programs on Re-Interpreting International Humanitarian Law in the Age of Terror in a collaboration between The Catholic University of America's Columbus School of Law, The United States Military Academy, West Point, and the American Jewish Congress. The next program will be a conference held at West Point on November 7-8, 2005.
