DEDICATION

RALPH J. ROHNER

To commemorate the Catholic University Law Review's 50th Anniversary, the Editorial Board proudly dedicates this issue to Professor Ralph J. Rohner. Through Professor Rohner's guidance, wisdom, and vision, the Law Review has continued to foster quality academic discussion and reflection with the same spirit and values that characterized its very first issues. Professor Rohner, perhaps more than any other single person, is responsible for making the Catholic University Law Review the success that it is today.

After graduating from Catholic University with an A.B. in 1960, Professor Rohner enrolled in the Columbus School of Law. Among his successes as a law student, Professor Rohner graduated valedictorian, authored two articles for the Law Review, and served as Editor-in-Chief for Volume 12. Soon after graduation, Professor Rohner returned to the Columbus School of Law as a Professor, where he continues to instruct today. During his time as a Professor, he has served as Acting Dean (1968-69), Associate Dean (1969-71), and Dean (1987-95). Most notable for the Law Review, however, is the twenty-two years that Professor Rohner served as its faculty advisor. As a student, staff member, Editor-in-Chief, Professor, Dean, and Advisor, Professor Rohner's leadership and example have guided our journal and the professional and intellectual development of its staff. We dedicate this 50th Anniversary issue to Professor Rohner, in grateful acknowledgment of the lasting contributions he has made. To him, and to the Law Review, we raise our glasses in wishing "sto lat!"
