Dedication to Roger C. Hartley
Associate Professor of Law

The Editorial Board of the Catholic University Law Review proudly dedicates Volume 34 to Professor Roger C. Hartley for his outstanding commitment to learning and for his dedication and scholarship in the areas of Labor Law, Constitutional Law, and Appellate Advocacy. Professor Hartley has made invaluable contributions to his students, the school, and the legal community. His unique dynamism in the classroom and his enduring dedication to the study and teaching of law have endeared him to class after class of law students at the Columbus School of Law. A former Comment Editor of the University of Pittsburgh Law Review, Professor Hartley has been a remarkable asset to the Catholic University Law Review. His ceaseless demand for excellence and precision in legal writing and his depth of knowledge concerning labor and constitutional matters have made him a superior resource for editors and writers alike. In addition, during his tenure at Catholic University, Professor Hartley has served as faculty advisor to the Moot Court Association.

A member of the District of Columbia and Pennsylvania Bars, Professor Hartley is widely known for his contributions in the field of labor law. As a staff attorney in the National Labor Relations Board's Appellate Division and subsequently in private practice, Professor Hartley has filed briefs and argued appeals before seven United States Courts of Appeals and numerous United States District Courts. In addition, Professor Hartley is eminently recognized for his writings in the labor law area. Professor Hartley has authored law review articles on various labor subjects, and with Dean Florian Bartosic of the University of California at Davis Law School, is the co-author of Labor Relations Law in the Private Sector (ALI-ABA 2d ed. 1986).

With deepest respect and appreciation, we take this opportunity as the Editorial Board of Volume 34 to thank Professor Hartley for his many contributions to the Catholic University Law Review and the Columbus School of Law.
