PREFACE

Harvey L. Zuckman ........................................................................................................... i

ARTICLES

The FCC's Television Duopoly Rule: Is the Third Time the Charm?
William R. Richardson, Jr. ............................................................................................... 1

À La Carte and “Family Tiers” as a Response to a Market Defect in the Multichannel
Video Programming Market
T. Randolph Beard, George S. Ford, and Thomas M. Koutsky................................. 31

From Third Class Citizen to First Among Equals: Rethinking the Place of Unlicensed
Spectrum in the FCC Hierarchy
Harold Feld...................................................................................................................... 53

Policy Lessons from Personal Communications Services: Licensed vs. Unlicensed
Spectrum Access
Kenneth R. Carter ............................................................................................................ 93

COMMENTS

Ending the Cyber Jihad: Combating Terrorist Exploitation of the Internet with the Rule of Law and Improved Tools for Cyber Governance
Benjamin R. Davis ........................................................................................................... 119

Regulating Chimeric Communications Technology: The Future of Mobile TV
Nicole A. Behar ............................................................................................................. 187

Telecommunications as a Weapon in the War of Modern Organized Crime
Christopher A. Nolin .................................................................................................... 231

Failure of Imagination: Why Inaction on Net Neutrality Regulation Will Result in a de Facto Legal Regime Promoting Discrimination and Consumer Harm
Davina Sashkin ............................................................................................................... 261

CONSPECTUS

Major Court Decisions, 2006 ............................................................................................ 311

Selected FCC Docket Summaries, 2006 ......................................................................... 317